Biker Jacket

The biker jacket is probably the most iconic leather jacket option. This jacket exudes style and has a definite "cool-factor." A biker jacket can be worn by anyone, though, and you don't even have to have a motorcycle. This jacket comes in many colors and feature options, which allows you to customize your leather biker jacket to your own tastes. Leather is a strong and durable material. It is extremely thick and can take a beating. That is why the leather biker jacket ultimately serves a purpose, along with looking ultra-cool. The leather biker jacket was initially designed to help protect bikers from the elements and the occasional fall or accident.

Bomber Jacket

Traditionally used by pilots, this take on an aviator jacket is practical, warm, and durable. The bomber jacket is a simple design, featuring strong and durable leather, which can be worn by either men or women. The shape of this leather bomber jacket is full through the body, tapered toward the waist. The jacket is usually rather simple, featuring one main zipper up the jacket's center for closure. The collar on the bomber style jacket is traditional, with a normal shape and size, gently folding away at the collar bone. While this jacket's body is made of leather, it is quite common to see fabric added to the bottom of the sleeves and the bottom of the jacket. Coming to about the hips, this jacket features an elastic material that helps to keep the jacket close to the body.

Moto Jacket

The moto jacket is a fun twist on the traditional motorcycle jacket. This jacket highlights more form than functionality, making this a highly styled and fun piece to add to any wardrobe. Easily found for men or women, this jacket fits close to the body and features some fun additions, majorly increasing one's cool-factor when wearing this jacket. A leather moto jacket was first intended for people to wear while riding their sports bikes. The leather was thick and durable, protecting people from weather, wind, and the potential crash. The thick leather could protect the wearer from possible scrapes and cuts, while additional padding and stitching within the jacket could help reinforce the protection. Many of these features are still stylized and included in the modern version of the moto jacket.
